THE SEASONS.

PHOCION, the Winter's ſhiv'ring reign,
With ſnowy mountains heaps the plain,
And binds the rolling ſea ;
But ſoon the ſun's enliv'ning beam,
Shall glance along the yielding ſtream,
And melt the ſnows away.

Soon as the ſultry ſummer's fled,
The Autumn triumphs in its ſtead,
And Winter's hoary ſway
Hangs in the rear ; but ſoon the ſpring,
Soft gliding on a Zephyr's wing
Comes blooming, young and gay.

But wrinkled brows and ſilver hairs
Know no remove thro rolling years,
But ſtill unchang'd remain :
And oils and laurels vainly try
To turn the white unwelcome dye
To native black again.

Then, Phocion, wake thy gen'rous ſoul,
Seize the bright minutes as they roll,
And load them out with fame :
Nor mingle with the wretched croud,
That headlong ruſh the downward road,
To darkneſs, woe and ſhame.

Heaven loves to ſee a youthful mind,
(But oh ! 'tis difficult to find !)
Avoid the ſhining ſnare ;
And values young devotion more,
Than if a tot'rer at four ſcore,
Could ſigh an age in prayer.

SCIPIO—No. XI.

It has been fully eſtabliſhed by the letters of Mr. Monroe, that ſo late as December 1795, no complaint had been made to him by the ruling powers of France, though the treaty had been known and publiſhed in the papers at Paris from the middle of Auguſt to that time ; a ſpace of almoſt four months. Hence it may be inferred that the ſuſpicions which at firſt were entertained againſt the treaty, vaniſhed ſo ſoon as it was inſpected ; and that the Directory ſaw in it no cauſe of diſſatisfaction, and probably never would have made it a ſubject of uneaſineſs, but for [illegible] ry is made ; now, and by what means the French republic has been induced of late, to view the treaty in a different light ; and to hold it forth as the oſtenſible cauſe of that ſyſtem of injury and depredation which is carried on againſt American commerce, nothing can be more eaſily anſwered.

In a poſtſcript to Mr. Monroe's letter of the 5th November 1795, he informed the Secretary of State as follows : "Mr. Fauchet is lately arrived, and as he appears to be extremely diſſatiſfied with Mr. Jay's treaty with Great Britain ; and is apparently well received by his government, I doubt not his communications on that head will be attended to." This miniſter of the French republic, carried with him from America, a thorough knowledge of the oppoſition which had been excited againſt the treaty, by the matchleſs induſtry of the partizans of France, in every corner of our country. Never was an inſtrument ſo miſrepreſented and ſo ſlandered. Some men were ſo impudent as to ſay, that the treaty contained any and every thing that occurred to their imagination, which might render it odious. All the paſſions of America were engaged, and its reaſon ſeemed for a moment to have been loſt : With the impreſſion which theſe occurrences occaſioned, Mr. Fauchet returned to France. Beſides, during his reſidence here, he had made a perſonal acquaintance with many leading characters, and eſpecially with thoſe, who now are moſt diſtinguiſhed in the fallen faction. He was poſſeſſed with all the objections which the advocates for France in our national councils had been able to invent : He was poſſeſſed with the reaſons, if ſuch they deſerve to be called, which ſenators Burr and Tazewell had taken care to ſpread upon the journals of the Senate in ſupport of their reſpective motions to withhold the conſent of the Senate, from ratifying the treaty. Thus informed, thus fortified, thus ſuſtained he would repreſent in the ſtrongeſt colours, the unhappy diviſions which pervaded the community, [illegible] tory found, that there were Americans in number conſiderable, and in talents and addreſs influential, who were purſuing with zeal and union, a plan to defeat the treaty with Great Britain, and to promote a quarrel with that nation ; it was natural, it was unavoidable that they ſhould, with at leaſt equal zeal come forward, and taking their party by the hand, ſhould repeat every objection which had been made on this ſide the Atlantic : And ſo they did. Was it to be expected that the directory would deſert the French party here on any occaſion ? Was it to be ſuppoſed they would deſert the party, while it was uſing every exertion to fruſtrate the treaty, by claiming and exerciſing the right to refuſe the neceſſary appropriations ? Well did Mr. Monroe obſerve to Secretary Randolph "it is as eaſy for you, with the lights you have, to form a correct opinion upon that point (meaning the impreſſion made by the treaty in France) in Philadelphia, as for me to do it here". (page 207) It is a lamentable and undeniable truth that, there has been, and is a perfect concert of action, between the French party here, and the ruling power in France. This is the radical ſource of the embarraſſments which have attended our national movements. The faction (which thanks to God has declined to a junto, for the people are withdrawing their ſupport) has had the prudence to agree in their meaſures, and whatever they have been, they have been abetted and aſſiſted by the French republic. It is by this policy, which France perfectly underſtands, and will never neglect, that ſhe has added ſo largely to her territory during the preſent war : and it is this policy which ſhe may be expected to purſue with unremitted aſſiduity, during the troubles which now threaten the peace of the United States. Againſt theſe exertions of France, America muſt oppoſe a juſt ſenſe of her own dignity. She muſt exclude from her councils, thoſe faithleſs men who, whether the dupes or the guides of foreign politics, no longer deſerve her confidence ; and muſt defend her injured rights with the ſpirit of a free, ſovereign and independent nation. A ſtate of public affairs is near, or rather is come, when cement is neceſſary to preſerve the union. If a certain party have a diſtinct object, which I hope they have not, it is a ſeparation of the ſtates ; when the ſouthern part is to be put under the care and protection of the French republic. It is hither their regular and unceaſing courſe of political action has tended. From a lot ſo diſaſtrous, the Lord ſave thoſe ſtates.

In the Houſe of Lords, Nov. 8, Lord Viſcount Duncan, being introduced between Lord Hood and Lord Viſcount Newark,

The Lord Chancellor roſe to communicate to him in his place the unanimous thanks of the houſe, which he did in a very handſome ſpeech. He ſaid that as a mark of Particular reſpect for his Lordſhip, the Houſe had been ſummoned, a thing as unprecedented as the glorious atchievement which had given riſe to the proceeding. He had, in compliance with the voice of the Houſe, to communicate to him their thanks for his activity and talents diſplayed in the courſe of the three years he had commanded the fleet ſtationed in the North Seas : for his firmneſs and ſpirit upon the trying occaſion when he was deſerted by a part of his fleet in a ſtate of mutiny ; and, in fine, for his gallant conduct in the action of the 11th of Oct. which terminated in a brilliant and deciſive victory, unexampled in the naval annals of this country ; a victory which eſſentially contributed to the ſafety of this empire, by fruſtrating the preſumptuous deſigns of the enemy.

Lord Viſcount Duncan ſaid, that as he was not much accuſtomed to ſpeak in public, he ſhould confine himſelf to a very few words. He felt the deepeſt gratitude for the honor which the houſe had conferred upon him, and he begged leave to return his thanks to the noble and learned Lord [illegible]

[illegible] the order of the day taking into conſideration the papers relative to the negociation at Liſle being read, Lord Grenville moved,

"That an humble addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, aſſuring him that we have taken into our moſt ſerious conſideration the papers which had been laid on the Table relative to the negociation for peace ; that in the ſteps which had been taken we have recogniſed the pacific diſpoſition evinced by his Majeſty throughout the whole of its progreſs, and obſerved the inveterate hoſtility of the enemy, that while on the one hand his Majeſty has given an example of the greateſt moderation, the enemy on the other have abandoned every pacific diſpoſition ; that they entertained the moſt determined hatred and animoſity to the Conſtitution, laws and liberties of this country ; that the deſtruction of our conſtitution and government is the object at which they aim ; that we are determined to defend, at every hazard, his majeſty's perſon and government ; that we know that great exertions are neceſſary ; but that, notwithſtanding, we are prepared and reſolved to ſtand or fall with the conſtitution, laws, and liberties, upon which the happineſs of every claſs of the community eſſentially depends."

The addreſs being read by the Lord Chancellor, was then put and carried nem. diſſ.

"Our new philoſophers likewiſe tell us, that "it is abſurd for one generation to chooſe a form of government for another, or for any generation to make laws for poſterity ; and therefore no ſucceeding generation is bound to adhere to that government which their fathers ſet up, nor to ſubmit to any rulers whom themſelves have not choſen."—But if this doctrine is once admitted, there is an end to all government, of all commerce, and of all ſociety, civil and religious. If men could not chooſe a government or make laws for poſterity ; then not only [illegible] of every nation, behoved to be changed every day. Every day almoſt a thouſand perſons die in Britain ; an equal number are born ; and ſome hundreds at leaſt come of age. He that comes to age to day may ſay—"I never conſented to the form of government now ſubſiſting ; I never had any voice in the choice of the ruling powers, or in the making of any laws. I will therefore be ſubject to no laws till I myſelf have a part in the making of them ; nor will I ſubmit to any government, till I, in conjunction with my cotemporaries, have framed a conſtitution for ourſelves." He that comes of age to-morrow may argue in the ſame manner, and inſiſt for a general convention, in which he ſhall have a voice, by himſelf or his repreſentative, before he will ſubmit to any government or any law whatſoever. Surely then, we ſhall have conventions and conſtitutions in great abundance !

"Neither ſcripture nor reaſon give an excluſive ſanction to any particular form of government. Owing to the differences of national character, of ſituation, and purſuits, one kind of government may be proper among one people, and a different conſtitution may be better adapted to the circumſtances of another. Thus, a mixed government has been found moſt congenial to the people of Britain ; perhaps a republican government is more adapted to the circumſtances of our brethren in America : and from recent events, it may be ſuſpected, that hard as their ſituation was, while the king's will was their law, monarchy is the only government ſuited to the conſtitution levity and ferocity of our neighbors in France. There have been inſtances of nations flouriſhing and happy under different forms of government. And every government is capable of degenerating into tyranny, oppreſſion, and anarchy in the hands of a corrupt adminiſtration. Hence there is a great deal of truth in Mr. Pope's maxim.

"That which is beſt adminiſtered is beſt."

EXPATRIATION.

IS it right and proper for a citizen to renounce his citizenſhip at pleaſure ? The exerciſe of this right has been called expatriation. Many perſons think it is grounded on the ſacred and unalienable principles of natural liberty—they not only condemn thoſe governments which refuſe to ſanction, by their laws, the doctrine of expatriation, but they hold theſe who in converſation and argument deny it, in ſovereign contempt, if not abhorrence.

The nature of this doctrine, the ſhameful tranſactions it has been pretended to authoriſe, and the ſingular vehemence of the zeal of its advocates and believers, are ſo many ſubjects of our wonder. It was not ſo much as heard of till within ſix or eight years—a period that will be, to the end of time, remarkable for the perverſeneſs and extravagance of its political opinions. It ſeems as if we lived in the latter times, when, it is foretold, ſome ſhall depart from the faith, giving heed to ſeducing ſpirits, and doctrines of devils, ſpeaking lies in hypocriſy, having their conſcience ſeared with a hot iron. Is it not ſuch a doctrine, that in a republican ſtate, a man owes his country nothing, that he has a right to claim protection from the ſociety but in return owes it no duties—that he may equip a privateer, in defiance of the law of the land, and make prize of the veſſels of his countrymen and even neighbors and kindred, like Gideon Henfield and Commodore Barney. This is the nature of the principle of expatriation, and ſuch has been the practice upon it. Can any doctrine appear more abſurd or any conduct more vile ? yet a number of the pirates that prey upon our defenceleſs commerce plead this monſtrous apology that they are French citizens, ſailing under a French commiſſion, and thus they imagine they ſay, good bye, in due form of law, to juſtice, to honor and the gol[illegible] The doctrine that a man muſt ever [illegible] may be in need of limitation. Every general rule needs exceptions, for without them it would be ſometimes hard, if not abſurd. But in its utmoſt rigor and without any exception whatever, it is mor rational and juſt than the abſurd and licotious principle of expatriation at pleaſur.

A duty to on's country is a debt—and ſurely the county may rightfully claim that duty. When a citizen ſays he is expatriated, it is denying, not paying, the debt. The prattlers about expatriation are deſired to ſolve this caſe : When gen. Arnold would have berayed Weſt-Point and fled on diſcovery, did he not renounce his country ? that is toſay, was he not expatriated ! had he ben overtaken in his flight, would it not hve been juſt to have hung him ?—A jury was picked up in the ſtreets on purpoſe to acuit Gideon Henfield in the day of Genet's glory. Barney has not been proſecuted. A due conſideration of Arnold's caſe will aſſiſt the mind to decide this impudent problem, which ſo many privateering raſcals have propoſed to the public to make it be believed that they rob upon principle.

CONGRESS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY—JANUARY 17.

(Concluded from yeſterday's Gazette.)

On motion of Mr. Gregg, the houſe went into a committee of the whole on the report of the committee of claims on the petition of William Alexander, ſurveyor of army lands. After reading a number of papers relative to the ſubject, the report which went to authoriſe the treaſury to ſettle the accounts of the petitioner, was agreed to. The committee roſe, the houſe concurred, and a bill was directed to be brought in accordingly.

Mr. Pinckney, from the committee appointed to confer with the Senate on the diſagreement betwixt the two houſes, on the payment of intereſt to Gen. Koſciuſko, reported, that finding the buſineſs could be ſettled in a manner equally advantageous [illegible], by agreeing to the amendment of the ſenate, as by the mode originally propoſed, the committee recommended it to the houſe to recede from their diſagreement to the ſenate's amendment.

The recommendation was concurred in by the houſe.

The houſe took up and agreed to the ſenate's amendment to the bill preſcribing the mode of taking evidence in caſes of conteſted elections.

On motion of Mr. Harper, the houſe reſolved itſelf into a committee of the whole Mr. Dent in the chair, on the report of the committee of ways and means for providing for the expences of the civil department for the year 1798, and the blanks being filled, except in a few caſes, (in which they were left in blank) according to the eſtimate which had been laid before the houſe, the committee roſe, the houſe concurred and a bill was ordered to be reported accordingly.

A meſſage was received from the Senate informing the houſe that they had paſſed the bill ſuſpending the act relative to foreign coins, and alſo that for the payment of certain intereſt due to gen Koſciuſko.

Mr. Sitgreaves wiſhed to call the attention of the houſe to a ſubject which he thought worthy of notice. Several of the journals of the old congreſs held under the confederation, were now out of print, and become ſo ſcarce, that gentlemen elected to ſerve in congreſs, and who were entitled to them, were not able to obtain them. Theſe volumes, he ſaid, contained many ordinances and reſolves which were ſtill the laws of the land, and the copies of which ought to be multiplied. The ſame obſervations would apply to many reports of heads of departments and committees made under the preſent government, the only copies of which were to be found in the clerk's office, or in the libraries of members who had been careful in preſerving them. He thought it of importance, therefore, that copies of theſe ſhould be multiplied and preſerved. For both theſe purpoſes he propoſed a reſolution to the following effect, which was agreed to, and a committee of three appointed

"Reſolved, that a committee be appointed to conſider and report upon the expediency of reprinting at the public expence, ſuch volumes of the journals of Congreſs under the old confederation, and ſuch reports of the heads of departments and committees of both houſes of Congreſs, as are out of print, or are thought to be neceſſary to the due underſtanding of the acts of government."

Mr. Sitgreaves ſaid, it was of equal importance to guard againſt this evil in future. This might be done by altering the preſent mode of keeping the journals of the houſe. Every member, he ſaid, muſt now ſee that the journals were, in a great degree, uſeleſs records, which contained no ſort of valuable information, except to members, and to them only during the ſeſſion ; but, for ſubſtantial information, they were abſolutely uſeleſs, and not worth the expence of printing. He, therefore, moved the following, which was agreed to :

"Reſolved, that the ſame committee be inſtructed to conſider and report upon the expediency of altering the form of keeping the journals of this houſe."

Mr. Sitgreaves obſerved, that there was another ſubject worthy of ſome conſideration, which was in ſome degree connected with theſe. It was this. There were two meſſages from the Preſident of the United States relative to the ratification of the amendments to the conſtitution, which were now become a part of the conſtitution, upon which no order had been taken. It was proper that ſome notification ſhould be made of theſe amendments having become the law of the land. Which was the beſt mode of doing this, he did not know ; but in order that ſomething ſhould be done in the buſineſs, he moved that they be referred to a ſelect committee.—Agreed.

Mr. Sitgreaves ſaid he underſtood, from what he had ſeen in the newſpapers, and from what he had heard ſince his return, that conſiderable impatience had been ſhewn in a part of the houſe, in his abſence, for the report of articles of impeachment againſt William Blount. He ſuppoſed it was not neceſſary he ſhould now go into a ſtatement of the reaſons which had led to the delay—though, if it were neceſſary, he doubted not, he could explain the ſubject to the full conviction of every member. He only roſe, however, to ſay, that in the courſe of two or three days, he ſhould make the report.

THURSDAY, January 18.

The Speaker laid before the houſe a communication from the Secretary of War, incloſing an eſtimate of the appropriations neceſſary for holding a treaty with the Cherokee Indians, which was in ſubſtance as follows :

	Dolls.
For three Commiſſioners, 90 days at eight dollars per day - - -	2,160
Incidental expences of do. - -	360
Secretary, at four dollars per day -	360
Rations of 2000 Indians - -	15,000
Preſents to the Iudians - -	5,000
Stores for the Commiſſioners - -	2,000
Incidental expences - - -	1,000
	25,880

This ſtatement was referred to the committee of the whole to whom was referred the former meſſage of the Preſident on this ſubject.

Mr. Tillinghaſt called up his reſolution reſpecting a repeal of the Stamp Act, which was referred to the ſame committee of the whole to whom was referred the report of the committee of ways and means on this ſubject.

Mr. Sitgreaves, from the committee appointed on the ſubject of William Blount's conſpiracy, made a ſupplementary report, containing the depoſition of Abranam Holden, of New York, which ſeemed to imply that J. P. Riply (whoſe evidence related to what he had heard [illegible] Eaton ſay) had been ſupplied with money by the Spaniſh Miniſter, whilſt he lived at New-York, when he was in needy circumſtances. He told the deponent that he had received 200 dollars from him, and was to have more. This report was ordered to be printed.

Mr. D. Foſter, from the committee of claims, made a report on the petition of Lucy Clark, widow of Thomas Clark, which was in her favour, and was committed for to morrow.

Mr. Findley preſented the petition of Clement Biddle, of this city, in behalf of ſundry Europeans, poſſeſſed of certificates of the debt of the United States, which was barred by the ſection of the act making proviſion for the public debt, which he prays mays be excepted from its operation, as the perſons holding the claims had no knowledge of the law. Referred to the committee of the whole to whom was referred the ſubject of conſidering the propriety of excepting certain claims from the operation of the limitation acts.

Mr. Clopton from the committee of enrolment, reported the bill preſcribing the mode of taking evidence in caſes of conteſted elections, and that providing for the payment of intereſt on a certificate due to General Koſciuſko, as duly enrolled.

The following meſſage with the papers to which it refers, were received from the Preſident of the United States :

Gentlemen of the Senate, and
Gen'elmen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

"A repreſentation has been made to me by the Judge of the Pennſylvania Diſtrict of the United States, of certain inconveniences and diſagreeable circumſtances which have occurred in the execution of the law paſſed on the 28th of May 1796, entitled, "An act for the relief of Perſons impriſoned for debt." as well of certain doubts which have been raiſed concerning its conſtruction. This repreſentation, together with a report of the Attorney General on the ſame ſubject I now tranſmit to Congreſs for their conſideration, that if any amendments or explanations of that law ſhould be thought adviſable, they may be adopted.

JOHN ADAMS."

United States,
January 18th 1798

This meſſage, with the papers accompanying it, were referred to the ſame committee of the whole, to whom was referred the report on the petition of William Bell.

On motion of Mr. Harper, the houſe reſolved itſelf into a committee of the whole on the bill providing the means of intercourſe between the United States and Foreign nations, Mr. Dent in the chair ; when the bill having been read, and Mr. Harper having declared with what ſums it was propoſed to fill the blanks, Mr. Nicholas, after a ſpeech of conſiderable length, in which he dwelt upon the evils which had been, and which were likely to be produced by an extenſion of our foreign diplomatic intercourſe propoſed ſeveral amendments to the bill, the effect of which he profeſſed to be to reſtore the buſineſs of foreign intercourſe to the ſame footing on which it ſtood in the year 1796, before the extenſion took place.

A long debate enſued, which is deferred till to-morrow. The ſpeakers in favour of the motion were Meſſrs. Nicholas, Gallatin, and Baldwin ; againſt it, Meſſrs. Harper, Allen, and Sitgreaves. The committe roſe without taking a queſtion, and obtained leave to ſit again.

NEW-YORK, January 17.

Capt. Hinxt of the Dutch ſhip Protectry, of 56 guns, died on his arrival in the Texel, of the wounds he received in the action.

It is ſtated in the Engliſh prints, that the Fmperor of Ruſſia has granted a penſion of 200,000 roubles, to Louis XVIII.

On the 5th inſtant, the brig Sally, Joſeph H. Atkins, maſter, arrived in Rebellion Road (Charleſton, S. C) in 53 days from Bourdeaux.

Cap Atkins left Bourdeaux on the 9th of November. Four days before he ſailed, capt. Woodman, of the brig Aurora, of Charleſton, then in Bourdeaux, received the following letter, from General Pinckney.

Paris October 9, 1797.

"SIR—As it is poſſible our negociations with this republic may not have a favourable iſſue, and that may colleagues and myſelf may be ordered to leave France, and as I underſtand you are bound to Charleſton, I would wiſh to go with my wife, daughter, ſecretary, and perhaps two other gentlemen ; I ſhould be glad to know if you take paſſengers, and have accommodations for them, and what are your terms, and the lateſt time you ſail. Be ſo good as to write me. This is not to be conſidered as an engagement to go in the Aurora, but merely as a letter requeſting information. I remain, very reſpectfully, your moſt obedient ſervant.

(Signed) "CHARLES C. PINCKNEY.

Capt. Woodman.

N. B. I think the Aurora, is a ſhip ; ſhould ſhe not be accommodated for paſſengers, can you inform of any veſſel at Bourdeaux, that is, and about to ſail on the 20th November, for Charleſton, or near it."

As capt. Atkins poſitively aſſerts, that the letter from General Pinckney was received but four days before he ſailed, it is probable that there is a miſtake in the date of the copy of the General's letter, and that it ought to be the 29th of October inſtead of the 9th, which would be five days, the time the couriers take to go from Paris to Bourdeaux.—The poſtſcript to the letter, we think, confirms this opinion ; for if the General expected to be ordered away early in October, he would hardly put off his voyage to the 20th of November.

In conſequence of the information, the American merchants in Bourdeaux were much alarmed, and they had been adviſed to get their property out of France as ſoon as poſſible, as there was a general opinion prevailing, that there would be a rupture between France and this country.

PHILADELPHIA,

FRIDAY EVENING, JANUARY 19.

We are informed the Secretary of State yeſterday received a letter from Mr. Murray, our miniſter at the Hague, incloſing a letter he received from general Marſhall, which informs, that the French government had not recogniſed the American commiſſion, and that they daily expected they would be obliged to quit the republic. Mr. Marſhall's letter is dated October the 21ſt.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Fenwick, American Conſul at Bourdeaux, to his correſpondent in Charleſton, dated 9th Nov.

"In conſequence of the hoſtile appearances with America, the bearer of this has changed his deſtination, and tells me he will touch at Charleſton. I don't think for my own part that there will be a rupture with the United States, yet the negociation at Paris is likely to be without ſucceſs, and it is ſaid our commiſſioners are preparing to depart. There is no change in the conduct towards our commerce; and four veſſels carried into L'Orient, have been condemned at Vans in the court of appeals. Peace with the Emperor is made definitively; the French have dictated."

Capt. Atkins intended to ſail for a French port in the Weſt-Indies, but in conſequence of the news from General Pinckney, he thought it beſt to return to America; he brought no newſpapers

A correſpondent begs leave to obſerve, that if any of the members of the Legiſlature are not convinced of the neceſſity of a Turnpike Road to Germantown, a ride to that place is recommended as the beſt argument to remove their doubts.

The American Philoſophical Society held their annual election of officers, on the firſt Friday of this inſt. when the following were duly choſen:

Vice-Preſidents—Nicholas Collin, D. D. Dr. Benjamin Ruſh, Dr. Caſpar Wiſtar.

The ſociety will hold a ſtated meeting, on the evening of the 19th, at 6 o'clock.

A ſtated meeting of the American Philoſophical Society will be held at their hall at 6 o'clock this evening.

Yeſterday in the Senate of the United States, upon a motion for leave to bring in a bill to repeal the law laying a duty on [illegible], &c. made by Mr. Greene. a member from Rhode-Iſland, in purſuance of inſtructions from that ſtate—the Yeas and Nays were as follow:

YEAS.

Meſſrs. Anderſon, Bloodworth, Brown, Foſter, Greene, Jackſon, Langdon, Livermore, Martin, Maſon, Tazewell—11.

NAYS.

Meſſrs. Bingham, Chipman, Goodhue, Gunn, Hillhouſe, Howard, Hunter, Latimer, Lloyd, Marſhal, Paine, Read, Roſs, Sedgwick, Tracy—15.

Four members of the Senate are abſent—from the States of New-York, one, New Jerſey, two, and one from Delaware—theſe would have voted againſt the motion had they been preſent, in that caſe there would have been a ſtill greater majority againſt granting leave.

Mayor of the city of New-York, in conſequence of information given to the chairman of the committee, by captain William Eaton, ſince the date of the laſt report.

New-York, ſſ.

Abel Holden, junior, of the city of New-York, in the ſtate of New-York, being duly ſworn upon the Evangeliſts of Almighty God, makes oath and ſaith, that he lived for a number of years in the ſtate of New-Hampſhire, where he was acquainted with John Phillips Ripley, nephew to the Preſident of Dartmouth College—that the ſaid John Phillips Ripley lived for about two months during the laſt ſummer, and this deponent thinks in the months of July and Auguſt laſt, as a boarder and lodger in the houſe of Aſa Holden, the uncle of this deponent, where this deponent alſo lived at the ſame time, in the city of New-York—that the ſaid John Phillips Ripley during the ſaid period, having been applied to for payment of the money due for his ſaid board and lodging, this deponent at his requeſt, accompanied him firſt to a houſe, at the corner of Pearl and Broad-ſtreets, in the ſaid city, where he ſaid he ſhould ſee a gentleman from whom he was to have ſome money—that the ſaid John Phillips Ripley there converſed with a perſon to this deponent unknown, in the French language, which this deponent does not underſtand, and then informed this deponent that the gentleman whom he expected to have ſeen, was not at home—that this deponent then proceeded with the ſaid John Phillips Ripley, at his deſire, to a houſe in Greenwich ſtreet, near the Battery, in the ſaid city, which this deponent has ſince underſtood, to be occupied by the Spaniſh conſul, and where, as this deponent then underſtood, he expected to ſee the Spaniſh miniſter—that in the courſe of converſation on a former day, the ſaid John Phillips Ripley had informed the deponent that he knew the Spaniſh miniſter, whom he had recently ſeen in the ſaid city, in a phæton, drawn by four horſes—that upon their coming to the ſaid houſe in Greenwich ſtreet, the ſaid John Phillips Ripley looked in at one of the windows, and ſaid, that he ſaw there was company in the room, and that he would take another opportunity of calling, or to that effect—and added, that he had already had two hundred dollars from the ſaid miniſter, and was to have more money from him—that he has heard the ſaid John Phillips Ripley ſay, that he ſhould have had the office afterwards conferred upon captain Eaton, of Conſul at Algiers, but that captain Eaton had interfered and prevented it—that he was preſent when a ſimilar declaration of the ſaid John Philips Ripley was mentioned to captain Eaton, who then obſerved that he had been inclined to favour Ripley's views, but that there were ſubſtantial reaſons to prevent his appointment, and further added, that he underſtood Ripley had received money from the Spaniſh Miniſter,—that this deponent thereupon communicated to captain Eaton what he the ſaid John Phillips Ripley had mentioned to him as aforeſaid, and had before mentioned the ſame in the family of his uncle, the ſaid Aſa Holden.

ABEL HOLDEN, jr.

Sworn the 30th day of December, 1797, before me, (the word "had," and the words "whom he had recently ſeen in the ſaid city, in a phæton drawn by four horſes," being firſt interlined, the laſt words over an obliteration.) RICH'D VARICK, Mayor.

NEW-YORK, JAN. 10.

A GHOST.

New-Goal, (in the Fields) Jan. 10, 1798

A true and ſurpriſing account of the apparition or ghoſt of a woman, that has appeared ſeveral nights paſt in the New-Goal, to the great terror and affright of the priſoners, many of whom are ready to confirm the truth of it on oath.

Capt. Fiſh declares thnt for ſeveral nights paſt, the apparition of a woman has haunted the goal from room to room, this and the laſt week, followed and encircled by a radiant light, dreſſed in a white flowing robe and a turban on her head, ſeemingly of a pleaſing but dejected countenance. Capt. Fiſh declares that about twelve o'clock on Friday night this apparition came to his bedſide, and drew the curtains, looking ſtedfaſtly on him for ſome time, which ſo affrighted him, that he adjured her in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt, to tell him who ſhe was, or why ſhe came in "ſo queſtionable a ſhape," when ſhe caſting a look of ſorrow, accompanied with moſt ineffable ſweetneſs gradually diſappeared in the ſight of ſeveral other priſoners who were in the room, and are ready to teſtify the truth of what is here advanced.

Mr. Miller another debtor in the ſame room, going to the upper hall, about one in the morning, was met by the ſame woman who pulled him by the coat; which ſo alarmed and frightened him that he ſtood petrified as a ſtatue; when he came a little to himſelf he ſaw her gradually advance to the window, from which ſhe vaniſhed. He then called to the watchman to aſk him if he had ſeen it, he declared he did, and that he had ſeen it vaniſh from the ſame window ſeveral nights ſucceſſively.

Mr. Miller further declares, that after ſhe was gone, a large globe of fire of the moſt beautiful and diverſified colours rolled up and down the hall for the ſpace of five minutes; and then of a ſudden burſt with a dreadful exploſion, which left him in total darkneſs, which ſtill affrighted [illegible] than the firſt rencountre of the apparition; when making but one ſtep from the top of the ſtairs to the bottom, he recovered his room, in a condition of undeſcribable terror.

The Friday following Mr. Evans, being aſleep in his bed, was ſuddenly awakened by ſomething drawing open the curtains of his bed, when he perceived the figure of a beautiful woman, arrayed in white, looking ſteadfaſtly on him, which much alarmed him; he communicated his fear to another man who was in the ſame bed with him, who alſo ſaw it with terror and aſtoniſhment. It continued a conſiderable time by the bedſide in a contemplative poſture, often putting her hand on the left ſide of her robe, which ſeemed to be tinged with blood, and then he ving a deep ſigh, vaniſhed through the wall.

Mr. Hewit a few evenings after this, in the dead of the night being alarmed in his ſleep, ſuddenly leaped out of bed, and the firſt thing preſented to his view was the apparition of this woman, who with the moſt placid countenance ſeemed to claim his pity; but frightened to the greateſt degree at ſo uncommon an appearance, and fear cloſing his power of utterance, he leaped again into bed, covering himſelf over head and ears, with every particle of the bed furniture that was within his graſp. In a few minutes after, this apparition diſappeared, which was accompanied by a ſolemn, hollow, rumbling noiſe. leaving him in "The utmoſt exacerbation of human terror."

The priſoners in general further declare, that almoſt every night about twelve o'clock there appears a large ball of fire at intervals, which illuminates every room in the gaol for a time.

"Doom'd for a certain term to walk the night,
And for the day confin'd to faſt in fires,
Till the foul crimes done in my days of nature
Are burnt and purg'd away. But that I am forbid
To tell the ſecrets of my priſon houſe,
I could a tale unfold, whoſe lighteſt word
Would harrow up the ſoul, freeze all thy blood;
Make thy two eyes like ſtars ſtart from their ſpheres,
Thy knotted and uncombed locks to part,
And each particular hair to ſtand on end
Like quills upon the fretful Porcupine."

(Tranſlation.)

Meſſrs. M'Lean & Lang,

Thoſe who believe in the Spectre of the new priſon, may alſo believe the ſanctity of the views of John Stewart, the traveller, who goes from town to town, reading philoſophical romances, for money. The man of reflection ſees in the firſt caſe, the artifice of debtors who wiſh to get out of confinement, or of a child deſirous of obtaining a Chriſtmas-box by the ſale of a hand-bill;—in the ſecond, he obſerves a hypocrite, with a tone of humility and benevolence, who, not knowing how to gain a living by practiſing ſome honeſt mechanical art, reſorts to the more eaſy trade of reading and ſelling his lectures to idiots ſilly enough to give him their money. Deception is the ground-work of each. Neither is intended to inform men, nor to make them better. Both are catch-pennies. It will be fortunate if no bad effects are produced by them, particularly by the lectures.

When the revolution threatened France, and ever ſince that country has been torn to pieces by it, there have been, and ſtill continue to be numbers of theſe public preachers, of theſe travelling mountebank quacks who under pretext of enlightening the human mind, inſpired it with fanaticiſm, and formed many a political cut-throat. They demonſtrated the perfectibility of man!!!—But they ſhewed at the ſame time that this deſirable, and in their opinion, practicable elevation could not be attained but by reforming exiſting inſtitutions. A fanciful picture placed at a great diſtance, magically exhibited the advantages to be gained by a change of habits, and a renovation of the political ſyſtem. The deceived hearer, till then a good man, became enthuſiaſtic for the imaginary good, heated by degrees, and turned out a demoniac. In his holy delirium, he ſeized a fire-brand, or arm ed himſelf with a dagger, and ſmote his father, the throne, or the altar.

It is thus—It is by means like theſe, that ambitious men on one ſide, and philoſophers on the other, have murdered Louis XVI. and France. For whoſe benefit? For their own, ſince they reign in his ſtead, without having bettered the circumſtances of the nation.

Rewbell, in the conſtituent Aſſembly, preaching the liberty of the ſovereign people, and profeſſing in the Directory, the moſt abſolute deſpotiſm, reſembles Pope Sixtus V. who, when Cardinal, uſed crutches, but caſt them aſide on becoming Pope crying Ego ſum Papa! This Rewbell, like all the agitators of 1789, had his writers and his Readers! He ſtill has them, but to preach an oppoſite doctrine; In 1789, Inſurrection was the moſt ſacred of duties—NOW it leads to the ſcaffold, or to CAYENNE!

It has even been the caſe, that in order to deceive the people, or to corrupt them public orators, who, like John Stewart, travelled from town to town, & were employed to preach under the cloak of Philoſophy, the moſt poiſonous principles.

Let any man read the pamphlets to which every period has given birth—Every new ſtep, however villainous, however ſanguinary is declared to be meant for the happineſs of man. The treachery of eloquence diſguiſed the moſt horrible projects; and morality was preached while crimes were inculcated.

Citizens, ſuſpect theſe characters of philoſophy—their lips are honeyed, but their hearts are filled with gall.

"Attendite falſis Prophetis, qui veniunt advos in veſtimentis ovium: intrinſecus autem ſunt lupi rapaces." Goſpel.

Every well-regulated government, ſhould proſcribe this ſpecies of Fanatics. They precipitate their hearers into a dangerous delirium or a ſtupid extaſy—Both are incompatible with ſocial order.

OF THE TERMINATION—ed.

Words ending in ed, are derivitives, and are the participles terminating in d, and paſt tenſes of verbs. As people differ in pronouncing words with this termination, I have ſuggeſted the following rules, and requeſt grammarians to give their opinions on them.

Rule 1. When the primitive word ends in a conſonant, the ed is ſubjoined to form the paſt tenſe or participle; and conſequently ought to make a complete ſyllable with itſelf: to this rule, I know of no exceptions.

Rule 2. When the primitive word ends in E, there is only the D added, and ought not to be any more additional ſound, the ed being joined and forming a ſyllable with the preceding letters, as graced, laced, loved, &c. would be pronounced grac'd, lac'd, lov'd, [illegible] graced, fade....

Note. To make ed a ſyllable in the words baptized, circumciſed, as well as many others are harſh and grating to the exquiſite ear.

ANECDOTE.

Pepel king of Bonney, who is perhaps one of the moſt extenſive dealers in human fleſh which the world can produce, was ſo much incenſed at the proſpect of an abolition that he thus addreſſed a Liverpool captain.

"Why you no catchee dat Wilbafoce? why you no bringee to Pepel? I ſoon do um—I ſoon makee know why he poil trade."

The captain told him that it was impoſſible to comply with his requeſt as the cuſtoms of England and thoſe of Bonney were ſo very different.

"Well," exclaimed the monarch, "ſuppoſe you no bringee Wilbafoce, dere be one oder dey call Quaker—why you no catchee he?"

This anecdote reflects too much credit on theſe friends of humanity to require any comment.

The Air Furnaces were lately built for the purpoſe of caſting Cannon for this State.—There are about two thouſand acres of Land, one half of which is under wood, the other very fine arable Land, producing the beſt Hay and Paſture. The Cannon lately manufactured there, fully proves the excellency of the metal, which is ſuperior to any in this country, and probably, equal to any in the world; for not one of ſixty-nine guns lately made, although ſome of the 24 were bored into 32 pounders have failed on proving. The ſituation is very eligible, particularly for this branch of manufacture, and a place of arms lying in the ſtate of Connecticut, and only 30 miles from ſeveral landings on the Hudſon's river, and having every advantage that can reſult from a plenty of water iſſuing from a large natural pond, very near the Furnace, and which may be converted into a variety of other uſeful purpoſes. FOR THE CURE OF COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMAS, CONSUMPTIONS,

Church's Cough Drops

Is a medicine unequalled by any other in the world.

CERTIFICATE.

"I hereby certify, that I have been cured of a moſt ſevere Cough, Cold, and violent pain in my breaſt, by taking only a few doſes of Dr. CHURCH's Cough Drops. CHARLES BEVANS," Sail Maker, Spruce ſtreet wharf, Philadelphia.

From a London Paper.
To Dr. CHURCH.

SIR,

Having been recently reſtored from the brink of the grave, by your invaluable medicine, I think it my duty to make this public acknowledgment of the ſame, for the benefit of others afflicted with a ſimilar complaint. I had been afflicted with a moſt dreadful aſthma for about twenty-three years. I never for years got any reſt, my cough was ſo troubleſome in the night; and uſed to diſcharge an almoſt incredible quantity of glutinous matter from my lungs; and my breath was ſo exceeding ſhort that I could not walk acroſs my room. Providentially hearing of your Cough Drops, I took them; and, through taking them alone, I am now, bleſſed be God! reſtored to perfect health. My caſe is well known to the members of the Ebenezer Chapel, in Lincoln's-Inn-Field, of which I am alſo a member; and any of them will gladly ſatiſfy any inquiry concerning the truth of what I ſay. I am, Sir, your grateful ſervant,

Engliſh Grammar,

The ſecond edition, with improvements,

ADAPTED to the different claſſes of learners; with an appendix, containing rules and obſervations for aſſiſting the more advanced ſtudents to write with perſpicuity and accuracy,

By LINDLEY MURRAY.

"This is a publication of much merit, and fully anſwers the profeſſions in the Title. The appendix contains ſome of the beſt rules for writing elegantly, and with propriety, that we recollect to have ſeen."

Monthly Review, July 1796.

"This Grammar is, on many accounts entitled to commendatory notice, its materials have been carefully and judiciouſly ſelected; its arrangement is diſtinct and well adapted to the purpoſe of inſtruction and its expreſſion is ſimple, perſpicuous and accurate, &c."

See the character at large in the Analytical Review, July 1796.

Engliſh Exerciſes,

Adapted to the Grammar lately publiſhed by Lindley Murray, conſiſting of exemplification of the parts of ſpeech, inſtances of falſe orthography, violations of the rules of ſyntax, defects in punctuation, and violations of the rules reſpecting perſpicuity and accuracy, deſigned for the benefit of private learners, as well as for the uſe of ſchools.

"We have been much pleaſed with the peruſal of theſe Exerciſes. They occupy with diſtinguiſhed excellence a moſt important place in the ſcience of the Engliſh language; and as ſuch, we can warmly recommend them to the Teachers of Schools, as well as to all thoſe who are deſirous of attaining correctneſs and preciſion in their native tongue."

60 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the ſubſcriber, on the 24th of December, 1797, a Negro Man, about 22 years old, by the name of Cato, he is about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, midling well proportioned; he has a very coarſe voice, his fore teeth ſtand very far apart; there were one or two with him—I cannot rightly deſcribe the cloaths he took with him, for he took two or three ſuits; he had on when he went away, a pair of kerſey trowſers, a half worn drab coloured coat, a half worn wool hat; he took with him four very good ſhirts—I expect he has made for Philadelphia or the Jerſeys. Whoſoever takes up ſaid negro and ſecures him, ſo [illegible] above reward, paid by me, JOHN MOORE, Living in Still Pond, Kent county, Maryland.
